What would you like to book?
Incall one hour, nothing extra.
Yes. 3000. Welcome.
Thank you. Is cash OK?
Yes.

"She was so convincing. I've felt so bad because of this."

Hon var så övertygande

Jag har mått så dåligt över detta

Teacher: You're really not "supposed to" do this but it's a loophole and it works...

But it's absolutely nothing we can speak about openly.

If we deposit 80 k, at the latest 22/8 00.00, we can sell all the Bitcoins and get around 7.3 millions back.

Patrik lent over SEK 800,000 to a Borås teacher in a Bitcoin investment and was promised a 30 percent return: "I have felt so bad in all of this. I threw up every morning for a period."

BT has reviewed the teacher's affairs and can tell about her suspected fraud, which affected people all over Sweden. The money trail leads to a company in Cyprus – and a surprised CEO.

The readers tell us to go on!

”I appreciate your work. Thank you for revealing this to the public.”

”You are very brave. Keep digging!”

”Thank you for shining a light on vulnerable people in this town.”

Key success factors

- * Leaving the news room. We all love our computers, but to meet people we need to be out there.
- * Co working – we never do it alone.
- * We take our time, away from the daily news.

” Since you started digging I don’t seem to get invited to the fancy events in town as frequently...”

”But I’m fine with that. I’m very proud of our investigations”
